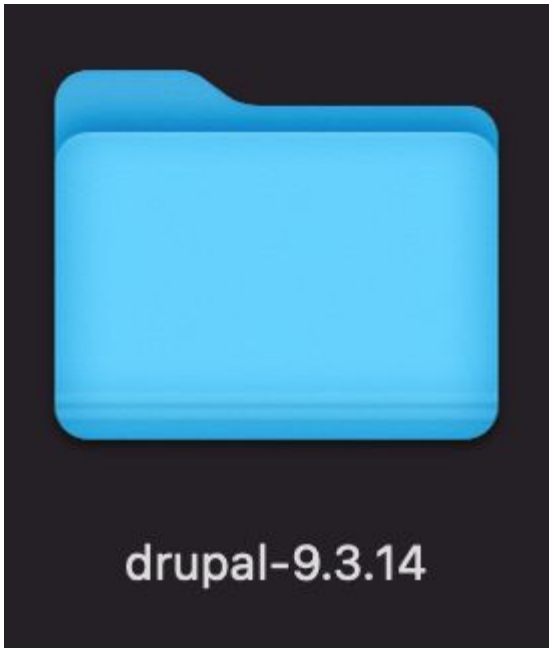
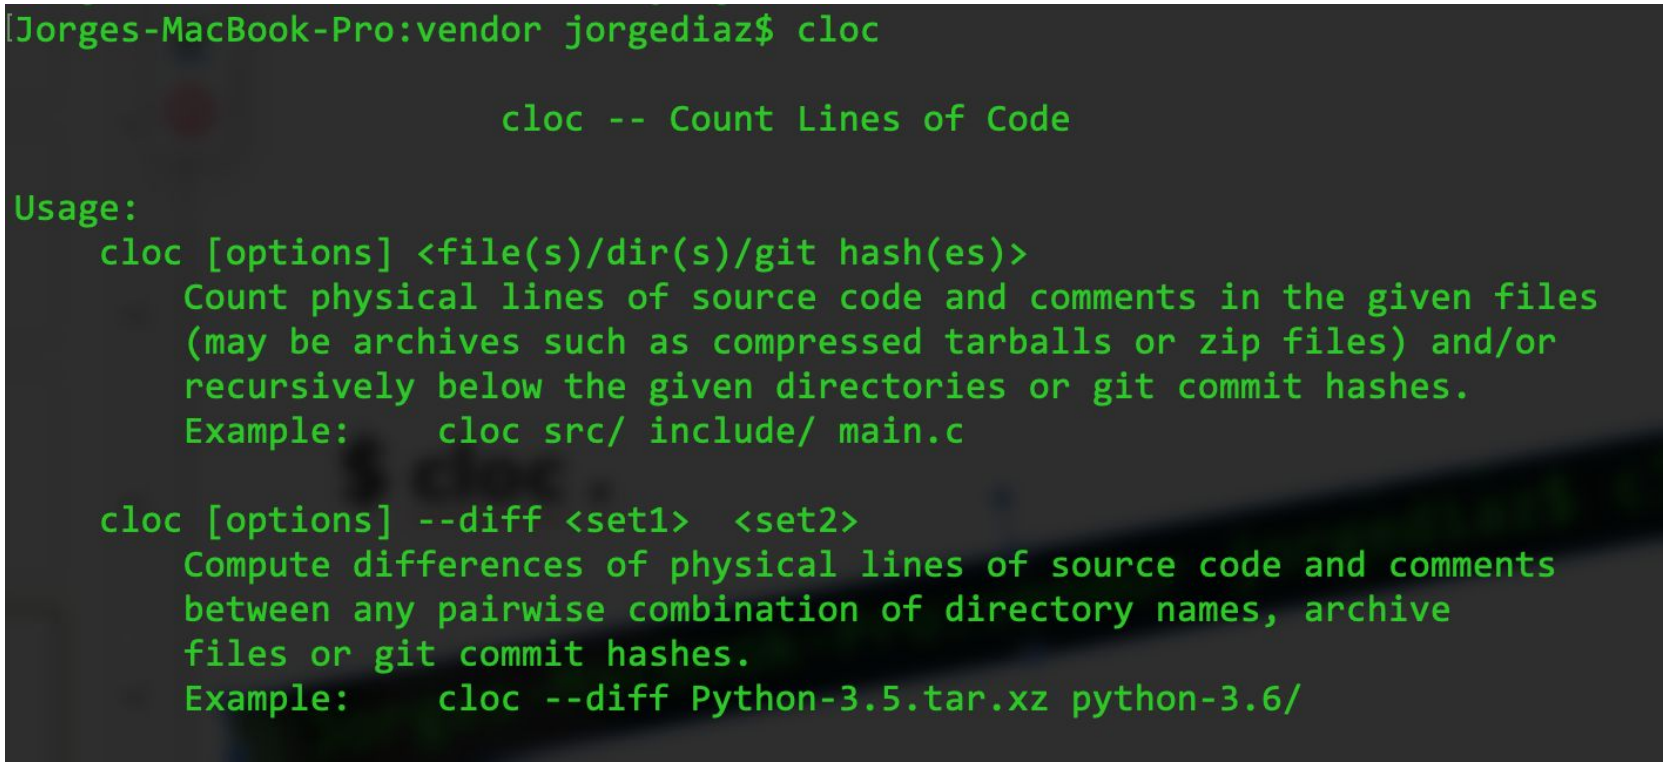
This is Drupal:



What is “$ cloc . “



Jorges-MacBook-Pro:vendor jorgediaz$ cloc cloc -- Count Lines of Code Usage:
cloc [options] <file(s)/dir(s)/git hash(es)>
Count physical lines of source code and comments in the given files (may be archives such as compressed tarballs or zip files) and/or recursively below the given directories or git commit hashes.
Example: cloc src/ include/ main.c
cloc [options] --diff <set1> <set2>
Compute differences of physical lines of source code and comments between any pairwise combination of directory names, archive files or git commit hashes.
Example: cloc --diff Python-3.5.tar.xz python-3.6/

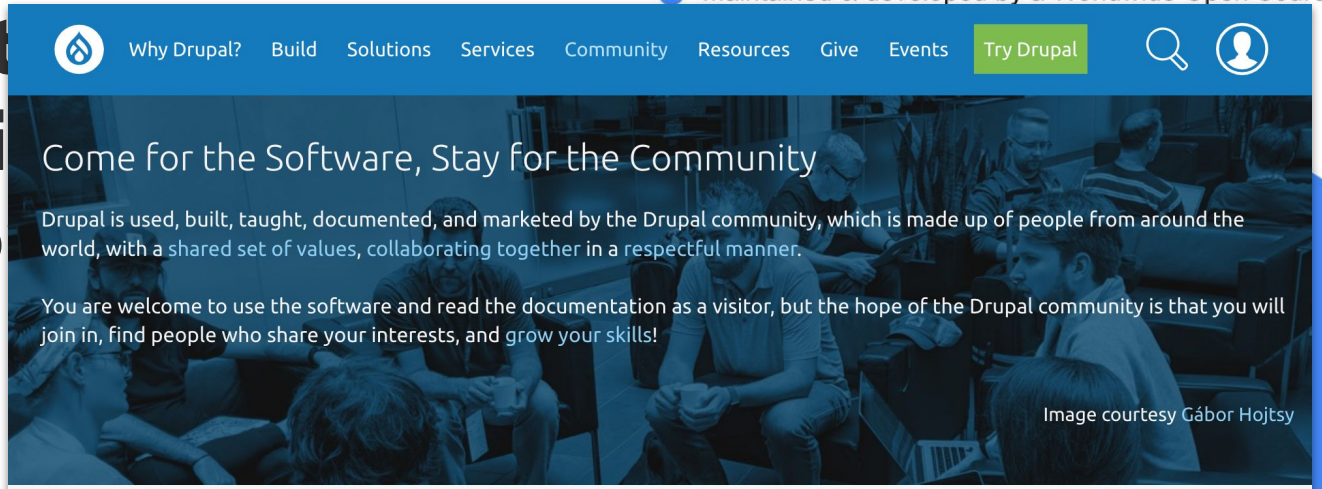
Maintained & developed by a Worldwide Open Source community



A community of 100,000+ stories

Everyone in the Drupal community has a story. We come from many backgrounds, with many skills and many perspectives -- but every month, more than 1500 people come together to improve the Drupal software, translations, documentation, and the community itself. Here are a few examples:

- Kevin Thull started recording sessions at DrupalCamp Chicago in 2013, and developed a kit for other DrupalCamps to use
- xjm started out fixing bugs in the TAC contributed module, and is now a Drupal Core maintainer
- Melissa Anderson started using Drupal, joined her local Drupal user group meetup, and ended up managing the Great Git Migration project
- And there are many more stories

Successful Migrations?

Main things to achieve:

- Similar Website behaviour (UI, UX, core functionality...)
- Exact User data (credentials, account information, history...)
- Replicated Content architecture (content itself, content relationship...)
- Same URL & Page Metadata (SEO, permalinks, references...)
- Third party integrations (Analytics, APIs, web services...)

Drupal core and hosting environment

Upgrades to Drupal 9 are supported from Drupal 8.8.x and Drupal 8.9.x. It is suggested to update to the latest Drupal 8 version available. Several hosting platform requirements have been raised for Drupal 9.

Requirement	Status
Drupal core should be 8.8.x or 8.9.x	⚠ Version 8.8.4 allows to upgrade but 8.9.3 is available.
PHP version should be at least 7.3.0	✓ Version 7.3.9
When using MySQL/Percona, minimum version is 5.7.8	✓ MySQL or Percona Server 5.7.26
When using Apache, minimum version is 2.4.7	✗ Version 2.2.34
When using Drush, minimum version is 10	✓ Version 10

Remove

The likely best action is to remove projects that are uninstalled. Why invest in updating them to be compatible if you are not using them?

☐	Project	Type	Status	Local version	Local 9-ready	Local scan result	Drupal.org version	Drupal.org 9-ready	Drupal.org issues
☐	Admin Toolbar	Contributed	Uninstalled	8.x-2.0	⚠ Incompatible	N/A	8.x-2.3	✓ Compatible	Drupal.org issue search

Remove

The likely best action is to remove projects that are uninstalled. Why invest in updating them to be compatible if you are not using them?

Update

There is an update available. Even if that is not fully Drupal 9 compatible, it may be more compatible than what you have, so best to start with updating first.

Project	Type	Status	Local version	Local 9-ready	Local scan result	Drupal.org version	Drupal.org 9-ready	Drupal.org issues

Collaborate with maintainers

There are likely Drupal.org issues by contributors or even the Project Update Bot. Work with the maintainer to get them committed, provide feedback if they worked.

TYPES OF DRUPAL MIGRATIONS

TYPES OF DRUPAL MIGRATIONS

The “ghost” migration

Potential modules to be used:

- Migrate: provides the APIs for importing data to Drupal 9 from any data source.
- Feeds: importing or aggregating data into nodes, users, taxonomy terms and other content entities using a web interface without coding a migration. Data can be imported from various formats, such as CSV, JSON, XML and RSS feeds.

Migrating “anything” to D9

If your data source is not a website, there are lots of things you can do:

- Migrate Plus: allows fetching data in JSON, XML, and SOAP formats.
- Migrate Source CSV: allows fetching data from CSV files.
- Migrate Google Sheets: leverages Migrate Plus functionality to allow fetching data from Google Sheets.

Average migration time?

Time varies, depending on the complexity of the source website.

- A Blog with no theme requirements: ~30 hours of work.
- A Blog with light theme requirements: ~30 hours + (theming development time)
- A corporate regular website with a light IA (some basic pages) & theme requirements: ~150 to ~450
- Won't go further today :)
